

Java news met with cautious optimism in free Java co

The free Java community reacted positively, but cautiously, to the news that Sun Java would be made available for Sun Java under the GNU General Public License. While community leaders are cooperating in the announcement, developers in the free Java community react with caution. Projects seem likely to continue development of their own implementations of J